

Swapalease.com Employees Give Back to Local Students and Teachers

(CINCINNATI, Aug. 27, 2009): The team at Swapalease.com recently came together to help local students and teachers by hosting a bin for the Push for Pencils back-to-school drive. Each year during Push for Pencils, the local non-profit organization Crayons to Computers (aka C2C) collects basic school supplies that go onto the shelves of their free store to supply local classrooms in need. The employees at Swapalease.com gave generously and filled not one but three bins solidly.

A recent article in the Cincinnati Enquirer discussed the tremendous burden placed on teachers having to buy school supplies for their students, and how Crayons to Computers is helping to alleviate this burden.

Swapalease.com strongly encourages its employees to get involved and give back to their local communities. The company sponsors employee and non-employee participation in various marathons that support local charities and regularly makes financial contributions to various local and national community organizations such as the American Heart Association, Make a Wish Foundation, United Way, Cincinnati Children's Hospital Medical Center, and Reds Community Fund.
